Lakota Develops Breakthrough Alternative to so called “Safe” Painkillers

Many Arthritis sufferers concerned about conventional painkillers are not finding relief in glucosamine

Some older, previously thought safe, painkillers appear to cause the same heart problems as the much scrutinized and discredited painkiller Vioxx. A report published in the Oct 4th Journal of the American Medical Association raised concerns about the possible health implications of certain painkillers, some of which have been on the market since the 1980's. This study adds to the growing concern about the safety of commonly used treatments for chronic, painful conditions such as Arthritis.

To avoid risky painkillers, many Arthritis sufferers tried glucosamine, only to be disappointed by the study published in the February 2005 New England Journal of Medicine. This large study concluded that glucosamine HCL is not any more effective at reducing joint pain than a placebo. Health Canada took the unprecedented step of removing glucosamine HCL from the list of approved natural treatments for joint pain. Glucosamine Sulphate, a slightly different compound, is still approved by Health Canada for the treatment of joint and Arthritis pain.

All types of glucosamine are ineffective when used in isolation. This explains the success of synergistic compounds like Lakota. Lakota Joint Care Formula provides a multi-action approach that glucosamine alone cannot match. The Lakota Joint Care Formula contains natural source anti-inflammatories and pain relievers, providing effective Arthritis pain relief with lower risk of gastrointestinal bleeding than aspirin or other NSAIDS.

Lakota recently developed a breakthrough Arthritis pain treatment with the discovery of the medicinal mineral Lumanite. By researching ancient medicines and performing rigorous systematic research, a unique medicinal mineral was uncovered. Lumanite aids in joint pain relief and connective tissue recovery.

Due to the chronic nature of Arthritis, the safety of pain relievers is critical. This prompted Lakota to research a natural alternative for Arthritis pain. Lakota announced today the availability of the Extra Strength Joint Care enhanced with the medicinal mineral Lumanite (patent pending). Extra Strength Joint Care with Lumanite provides an alternative to those concerned with the potential safety implication of painkillers.
